From the Editor's Desk

The biggest part of this issue is the three pages of articles on Surrey Excursion 2024, the PNR Regional Convention being put on by the 7th Division (its our turn) this coming May. This promises to provide a great show and should be seriously considered by all 7th Division members, especially if you live in the Lower Mainland. Check out the website and give participating some thought. You will not regret attending.

If, for a variety of possible reasons, attending the Surrey Excursion doesn't work for you, consider one of the other railway shows listed in the 7th Division Time Table on page 10. We have the poster for one of these, the Sea-to-Sky Model Train and Hobby Show in Squamish later this month, but there are many other choices.

This issue we also have an article from Les Bucher, our regular contributor of railway book reviews, on an interesting set of three books he has run into over the last year or so.

If you know of any events not listed in the Time Table, or if you are thinking about maybe providing your fellow 7th Division members with an article on something important to you, or if you just have some photos or some news or information that should be in the next edition, please send me an email at bbeditor@7divpnr.ca.

Enjoy the issue!

Superintendent's Message

By Victor Gilbert, 7th Division Superintendent

To all our new members: Welcome.

To all our members: Thank you for your support and your time. This is your organization, and we need you.

The spring train show season is coming. I will be attending some of the local train shows if I can, and I look forward to meeting all of you. Currently, I plan to be at the Sea to Sky Model Train & Hobby Show on March 23rd and 24th.

Annual General Meeting

For those of you who did not attend the Annual General Meeting (AGM) in November, we have had to move the AGM to comply with the BC Societies Act. On March 12th, 2024, we will have the 7th Division 2024 AGM. The AGM is intended to report on the activities of the previous year, in this case, 2023. When we held the AGM in November, activities tended to be reported on the current year and not the year before. With the AGM now being closer to the end of the year, the reports should reflect the previous year.

I hope you will all join us at the AGM. As has become the custom, the AGM will be on ZOOM. An invitation will be sent to each member of the 7th Division via Constant Contact. I look forward to having everyone there.

The Surrey Excursion – PNR Convention 2024

RMMBC for 2024 will be the “Surrey Excursion,” the PNR 2024 Annual Convention and an NMRA member-only event. Start a project so it can be displayed at the PNR Convention in May 2024. For those involved in the Achievement Program, there will be AP Judging at the convention.

We can use your help. If you want to present a clinic or assist, please get in touch with Mark Simpson, clinics@7divpnr.ca or Lori Sebelley, PNR2024Chair@outlook.com.

RMMBC will be back in its original form in 2025. The convention will be held in Surrey, BC, at the Sheraton Guildford. The committee is made up of most of the RMMBC committee, so the event will be as good as we have come to expect. The event will be from May 22nd through the 26th, 2024.

Do not forget this is YOUR event. We need your help to make it happen.

7th Division Website

Work continues on the 7th Division website (slowly). If you have the desire to volunteer and have web design skills, we are looking for a web admin for the 7th Division. And the login process to the Members Only section has changed. You will now need your NMRA member number to login. Passwords could not be copied from the old access. To get your new password, click on the “Forgot Password” link, and a temporary password will be sent to the email address we have on file for you. If you do not receive a temporary password shortly after it has been requested, check your Junk Mail and Spam folders. If you still have no password, please get in touch with webmaster@7divpnr.ca.

Guess What?

By John Martin, PNR 2024 Publicity

The 7th Division has a Facebook page.

Actually, we set it up for the Pacific Northwest Regional Convention – Surrey Excursion 2024.

The temporary name is “Model Railway BC” and you can search for it on Facebook. After the convention is over, we’ll switch to a more appropriate name that suits the 7th Division.

We encourage you to take a look. Post a photo of whatever you’re working on right now and comment on someone else’s project. It’s one more way to stay connected with your fellow modellers. Please give it a try.

Why Should YOU Attend Surrey Excursion 2024?

By Bill Van Horne, PNR 2024 Publicity

Well, if you live in Greater Vancouver or have a place to stay for free when you visit (my apologies to everyone else), the answer is simple: it's happening right here in your own backyard!

I spent about C$2,000* to go to Portland for a PNR convention. It cost me roughly the same for Spokane after everything was considered, including a speeding ticket. Even Salmon Arm was expensive for me. Don't get me wrong – it was fun and I'm glad I went each time. But it wasn't cheap.

But all YOU need to do is pop into your car, or grab a bus, and enjoy all the benefits of a convention at a bargain rate.

You might never have a chance like this again. We're scheduled to host again in 2031 or 2032, but who's knows what you'll be doing by then.

Most people in the 7th Division have never been to a PNR or NMRA convention. Why not grab the opportunity to do it right here at home? They really are worth your time. Clinics, layout open houses, operating sessions, and good company abound.

You won't need an expensive hotel room priced in US Dollars, no long-distance travel, no hassles at the border and no cross-border shopping by your significant other, nor out of province medical insurance, nor expensive US Dollars every time you open your wallet.

A lot of our American friends are coming to Vancouver for the convention because it's a bargain. You're already here. Like I said, why not try a convention just once in your life?

Check out the convention website for details or click on the big, red button below to register.

* If that number seems crazy to you, start with a hotel room for 5 nights at $180 plus taxes and "resort charges", add event registration, banquet, tours, workshops, meals, gasoline, and then a little shopping, all plus 30% extra for US dollars. I am NOT saying it's not worthwhile. I enjoyed the conventions. I'm just pointing out that it's available to you for a fraction of the cost of attending a convention in another area.

Three Interesting Books

By Les Bucher

These three books are all fairly recently published and all have topics related to BC railways, but have quite different approaches and styles.

Growing Up in Banff Station

When Trains Ruled the Rockies – My Life at the Banff Railway Station. By Terry Gainer; Rocky Mountain Books; 2019; 252 pages; $22.

This book's author had the good fortune of being the son of the Banff Stationmaster, and thus grew up in an apartment on the second floor of Banff station through the late forties, fifties and early sixties. The book is small in size, about the size of a classic paperback novel. The included photos are rather small, but are well reproduced.

The story covers the full range of everyday details of the life of a young boy (including rather more than I really wanted to know about childhood rivalries and local fishing holes), but also provides a very interesting view of the railway activities associated with a medium sized station. The author describes his interactions with the telegraph operators, the local switching crew, the baggage handlers and passenger train crews, as well as describing the work of the local town people, businesses and tourist facilities and their interaction with the station.

I enjoyed this book. It is well written and tells a story that has not been told before. There is probably not a lot of content that could translate directly into models, unless you happened to be modelling Banff station in the fifties, but there is a lot of interesting background information. This includes fascinating details about what went on in a busy station or small town in the fifties, and the book's information on late CPR passenger trains. The fact that the period covered by this book is commonly modelled is also a plus. The small size of the book's photos is a slight negative, but does not severely detract from the book. I purchased my copy at a local bookstore.

Building the KVR Through Myra Canyon

Myra's Men – Building the Kettle Valley Railway, Myra Canyon to Pentiction. By Maurice Williams; Myra Canyon Trestle Restoration Society; 2008; 168 pages; $20.

This book covers an aspect of the Kettle Valley Railway (KVR) that has only been touched on before: the lives of the workers who built the line and the conditions under which they worked. The book has what could be seen as a rather narrow focus and it was written by an academic historian, which some may take as a warning, but I did not find it a difficult book to read.

The book starts with an overview of the early history of the KVR and introduces the people, such as Andrew McCullough, involved in its design and construction. It then focuses in on the problem posed for the line by the Myra Canyon and the solution chosen for the line's construction. Next it describes the building of the Myra Canyon section of the line, the hiring of the workers, the camps in which they lived, the dangers they faced, and what they did in their free time. As one might expect, it did not sound like a job I would like to work at. The book is well illustrated with photos from various archives and museums, and contains a large amount of footnotes, tables and other reference materials.

I found the book interesting and well written, with all content well supported. Given the rarity of models of railways under construction, it is unlikely that many would find this book a good source of modelling support material. It does provide detailed information on the Myra Canyon bridges that some might find useful. On a more general level, it does cover an aspect of the construction of the KVR that is not strongly covered elsewhere, as well as providing broader information on the treatment of workers in the first world war era. Would I recommend it? Yes, for someone particularly interested in KVR history and who has already read Barrie Sanford's excellent history McCulloch's Wonder or a similar book.

The book may be a little hard to find. I bought my copy at the Revelstoke Railway Museum. You may be able to get your local bookstore to order it in for you.

Railway Heritage in BC

Rails Over The Mountains – Exploring the Railway Heritage of Canada's Western Mountains. By Ron Brown; Dundurn; 2016; 156 pages; $30.

This book has an interesting focus: rather than providing a history related to BC railways, it provides descriptions of BC railway-related heritage sites, buildings, museums, etc. This provides something different than most railway books, but has the disadvantage of going out-of-date as things change.

The book starts with a general overview of BC railway history, and then provides chapters on tunnels and bridges, railway stations, railway towns, railway hotels, railway structures, railway museums, railway trails and railway rides. This way of organizing the content has the effect of causing some duplication as there is a certain amount of overlap between railway towns, railway stations and railway museums, and so forth. Each of the chapters provides a list of content items (i.e., towns, hotels, etc) with anything between a paragraph to one or two pages on each. The text provides a description of why the item is important, what can be seen there, followed by its current status. The book is illustrated with black and white photos.

One problem I noticed with the book is that the item descriptions often contain errors. For example, the Esquimalt naval base is described as being "former" and as being "across the harbour from Victoria". Neither is true. This kind of error probably wouldn't cause problems for most users, but it does reduce confidence in the amount of fact checking that was done.

I found the many small errors in the book to be annoying, but I also found there were descriptions of several heritage items that I wasn't aware of, even though I tend to think of myself as being quite well informed about BC's railway heritage. I also found that a few of the heritage item descriptions were now out of date. All in all, I would hesitate to recommend this book without knowing more about the potential reader. It might not be an appropriate book for a well-informed reader, but could be quite helpful for someone who is newer to the hobby, particularly if he or she is willing to do a bit of online checking before heading off to see something.

Obituary

John Klit

Prepared from information from John's family, and others.

John Klit of Trail BC passed away on October 21, 2023 at the age of 87 years. John has left behind his wife Joan, six children, 21 grandchildren, and 17 great-grandchildren (with one more on the way), as well as many other family members and friends.

John was born in Trail on November 22, 1935. After finishing school, he spent the majority of his working career at Cominco. He worked there for almost 40 years, retiring in 1992. He then spent time at Woodbury Resort on Kootenay Lake fishing and helping develop the campground.

John was a very creative man and in 1961 he began the life-long project of building his own home. John was also a proud member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles for 52 years. As an active member, he held many positions and was awarded for many of his achievements.

John was a passionate railway modeller with a large, free-lance, HO scale layout that took up a good portion of the basement of his home. He was a long-time member of the 7th Division, as well as a member of the Golden City Railway Modellers. Club members report that he was a quiet, very likeable man.
